LANDS OF ILLINOIS. No Signs in the Valley of the Mississippl offers so great an indusement to the sattler as the State of Illinois. There is no portion of the world wagner of the conditions of climate and soil so amirably combine to protage those two great staples, Cons and Withar, as the Prairies of Illinois. RICH ROLLING PRAIRIE LANDS.

The deep rich learn of the prairies is cultivated with such won-derful facility that the farmers of the Bastern and Middle States are moving to Illimois in great numbers. The area of Illinois is about equal to that of England, and the soil is so rich that it will applyed twenty millions of people.

EASERAN AND SOUTHERN MARKETS. These lands are configuous to a railroad 700 miles in length, which connects with solar roads, and navigation lakes and rivers, thus affording an unbroken communication with the Eastern and Southern markets.

Thus far capital and labor have been applied to developing the soil; the great resources of the State in coal and iron are almost untouched. The invariable rule that the mechanic arts flourish best where food and fuel are cheapest, will follow at an early day in Illinois, and in the course of the next ten years the natural laws and necessities of the case warrant the belief that at least five hundred thousand people will be engaged in the State of Italians in the various manufacturing employments.

Over $100,000.00 of privat capital have been expended on the rathroad system of Illinois. Inasmuch as part of the income from several of these works, with a valuable public fund in lands, go to diminish the State Expenses, the TAKES ARE LIGHT, and must, consequently, every day decrease.

THE STATE DEST. The State Debt is only $10,105,308 14, and within the last three years has tash reduced $2,069,746 80, and we may reasonably expect that in the years it will become extinct.

OFFICIAL. Decisions of the Supreme Court of the State of Tennessee, at Knoxville, Sep-temper Term, 1860. Tipton vs. Tip ton and others.

The questions in this case arise upon the construc-tions of portions of the will of Jenathan Tipton de-The first question is upon the following clause, viz: "I do hereby give and bequeath to my wife, Margaret Tipton, the amount of estate and property I got with her in marriage that I now have in posseasion or will be at my death. Burrel, Rose, Sophy and her three children, Minerva, Lucy and Simon; and all the property of every description that I got with her in marriage. Also half the tract of land where I now live, containing 640 acres, to be laid off at the lower end to suit her convenience, to include half the cleared land, and all the buildings, her life time. After the making of the will, and before the death of the testator, the woman Minerva named in the will, gave birth to two children, Mariah and Gilbert, and the woman Sophy named in the will, gave birth to a child named Montgomery.

Upon this clause of the will, we are of opin that the three children born after the date of the will, passed to the widow, together with the other slaves specifically named and that she take them all absolutely, and not for life, only as held by the chancellor. The limitation of a life interest in the real estate, devised in the following member of the clause has no reference to the preceding bequest of the slaves 2d. The next question is upon the following bequest to the widow-'ajco the amount of the lowing notes; John Stephens' two hundred and ninety-three dollars. Robert Porter's note $488, Ruth and Lillard's $385. After the execution of the will, the testator transferred the above mentioned note on Ruth and Lillard, to his son, J. C. Tipton, taking the note of the latter for the amount of said note; and this note of

J. C. Tipton remained amongst the valuable papers of the testator at his death. The question is was this an ademption, so far as regards the note on Ruth and Lillard. The solu ion of this question depends upon whether the legacy is to be regarded as general or specific. The rule of ademption does not apply to general or lemonstative legecies, that is to legacies of an much money, with reference to a particular fund for payment; as if the legacy he given out of a particular stock, or debt, for in such case, although the particular fund be not in existence at the testators leath, the legatee will be entitled to satisfaction out of the general estate.

But if a bond or note, or debt, be specifically equeathed and it be collected or disposed of by the testator, after the making of the will is will be an ademption of the legacy; the subject of the legacy is extinguished, and nothing remains to which the words of the will can apply. Sec. 2 Wil-FOR SALE liams on Exr. 820 3, 741. According to the weight of authority, the bequest n the present instance, was a specific bequest of the notes or debts evidenced thereby: consequently the disposition of the note on Ruth and Lillard, by the tests or in his lifetime was an ademption pro known. 3d. The word "children" does not in the legal signi-leation, include "grand children." but it may be seld to include grandchildren, when there is an ambiguity in the will, and the manifest intention of the Will cannot otherwise be satisfied. 2. Jarman on wills, ch. 31 notes. 2 Williams on Ex. 717 et sev Taking the codicil and will together it is perfectly clear that, by the word "children" in the body of the will the testator intended to include the chil dren of his deceased son and daughter; the codicil emonstrates this beyond all question; and upon any other construction the codicil is rendered wholly inoperative. The children of Sarah Wilkinson, (daughter of testator) will take by representation the interest of their deceased parents; and George B. Tipton, (testators grandson.) will take under the codoil, a share equal to the share of each one of the Wilkin-

Lincoln's War Establishment. The following is a summary of the leading points the report of Luxuota's Secretary of War:

Of the regiments accepted, all are infantry and riflemen with the exception of two battalions of artillery and four regiments of cavalry. A number of regiments mustered as infantry have, however, attached to them one or more artillery companies and there are also some regiments partly made up of companies of cavalry. Of the 208 regiments accepted for three years, there are now 153 in active service, and the remaining 55 are mostly ready, and all of them will be in the field within the next 20 days. The total force now in the field may be computed as follows:

Regulars and volunteers for three months and for the war ..... Add to this fifty five regiments of volunteers for the war, accepted and not yet in service Add new regiments of regular army.. 25,000

Total force now at command of Goveduct the three months' volunteers orce for service after the withdrawal of the three months' men ...... It will thus be perceived that after the discharge of the three months' troops, there will be still an available force of volunteers amounting to 188,000, which, added to the regular army, will constitute a total force of 230,000 officers and men. It will be for Congress to determine whether this army shall, at this time, be increased by the addition of a still larger volunteer force. The regular army has also been increased. This increase consists of one regiment of cavalry, of twelve companies, numbering, in the maximum aggregate, 1,189 officers and men; one regiment of artillery of twelve batteries, of six pieces each. numbering, in the maximum aggregate, 1,900 officers and men; nine regiments of infantry, each regiment containing three battalions of eight compa nies each, numbering, 1.1 the maximum aggregate 2 452 officers and men, making a maximum increase of infantry of 22,068 officers and men. In the enlistment of men to fill the additional regiments of the regular Army, it is recommended that the term of enlistment be made three years, to correspond with the call of May 4 for volunteers; and that to all who shall receive an honorable discharge at the close of their term of service, a bounty of $100 shall be given. The mounted troops of the old army consist of five regiments, with a maximum aggregate of 4,-400 men. Not more than one-fourth of these troops are available for service at the sest of war. At least two regiments of artillery are unavailable being stationed on the western coast and in the Florida forts. The appointment of civilians to important positions in the army having occasioned some remarks of dissatisfaction, the Secretary remarks that of the civilians appointed as regimental commanders, all except one are either graduates of West Point or have before served with distinction in the field; and of the lieutenant colonels, myjors, captains and first licutenants, a large proportion have been taken from the regular army and the volunteers now in service, while the second lieutenants have been mainly created by the premotion of meritorious a regeants from the regular service. The reports of the chiefs of the different bureaus of this department present the estimates of the probable amount of appropriations required, in addition to those already made for the year culing June 30, 1861, for the force new in the field, or which has been accepted and will be in acryica within the next twenty days, show an aggregate sum of $185,296,187. The Secretary recommends an appropriation to be made by Congress, to be applied, when the public exigencies demand, to the reconstruction and equipment of railroads, and for the expense of maintenance and operating them, and also for the construction, as the army advances, of additional talescend lines and their appurturences, and also a telegraph lines and their appurtenances, and also a special appropriation for the reconstruction of the special appropriation for the reconstruction of the Long Bridge across the Passanse, which is now a unitary preventy.

The rest of the Secretary's report consists of a statement of the number and condition of the arms in the possession of the Government, and the means employed for obtaining a further supply, the document concluding with a recommendation of the appointment of an Assistant Secretary of War, (provided for by one of Mr. Wilson's bills,) and a general increase of the clerical force of the departeral increase of the clerical force of the depart-

Mr. Chase's Financiering. The following exposition of the remarkable blunders of Lixcotn's Secretary of the Treasury, in regard to taxation, is from the New York News:

The estimates of the Secretary in respect to the firect taxes are very large and require some ex-planation that they are not likely to get from the Department in order to insure public confidence. Compared with the census valuation of 1850 they are as follows: TAXABLE VALUATION—NORTHERN STATES. Personal. Res. Total. 2742.713.000 $2,456,847,900 $3,137.939.938 7,870,330,803 10,900,738,867

$9,526,514.3638 $5,186,319,700 $7,702,807,008 DECISIONS OF THE SUPREME COURT. The figures for 1850 are the official census figures, and those for 1860 are those in the report of Mr. Chase as from the census. Now if anybody believes that the personal property of the North was nearly five times as much in 1860 as in 1850, we do not. Does any one believe that the land valuation to-day is three times what it was ten years since? If he does he must have a large bump of

It is very adroit, no doubt, when you propose to the public to show them that they own an enormous amount of property, but they will not the less grumble at paying out the money. Now, Mr. Chase alleges that this vast sum of nearly eleven thousand millions is subject to taxation in the several States of the North; but it will be borne in mind that near-ity all the States lever taxes for town. ly all the States levy taxes for fown, county, and State purposes, and that the valuation on which those taxes are levied is the true taxable valuation. We may then compare them with Mr. Chase's ro-

The State valuations are made public annually n each State, as thus in the State of New York or the present year it is $1,405,507,579. Mr. Mansommissioner for the State of Ohio, has just published the valuation of real and personal property in that State, as follows :

Ohio has been one of the most thriving States of e Union, and her property has doubled in ten years, showing an enormous increase; but it is very far, from having quadrupled as Mr. Chese would have us believe, and he is an Ohio man, and should know the facts. Now, if we compare the official State valuation, on which the taxes are levied, and compare with them the gilding on Mr. Chase's tax bill, we have results as follows:

Mr. Chase's error !.... .. $5,362,344,444 Thus Mr. Chase has doubled the property of the country at a wave of his pen, in order to requee the apparent rate of taxation. It follows that, to arrive at what the public has to pay, the rate of tax as given by Mr. Chase must be doubled. Thus, he says 15th of one Pt cent, or 20 cents 7 $100, on $10,990,758,007 will give $21,800,056; but, cost on the true sum, the rate is 40 cents on the $100—or the share of Ohio will be $3,553.208 on a tax of $21,000,000. It is obvious that whether the basis of the taxation is valued more or less, or the rates of the tax higher or lower, the amount of money to be paid is the same. It is, however, not levied in proportion to property, but in proportion to number, if the Constitution is regarded, and Ohio's share would be $2,600,000. Mr. Mansfield, the Ohio Con states that with mortgages on farms, bank debts, &c., &c., the people of Ohio owe $230,528,638,-This debt was contracted when the productions of Ohio had a fair value, and it must now be paid when those products have little or no value. We may il-

Instrate with the leading products of Ohio as given in the official figures : Figlue light | Fig ne this Corn. tuste's ..... 90,000,000 6,304,400 . 9,925,018 1,500,000 $59,339,910

The value of land depends upon the income; if that is cut down 40 P cent., the real value falls in the same ratio. Now the above debt of $230,525, 638 was contracted with corn at 70 cents, and must be paid with corn at 35 cents. In other words it has doubled. The tax Mr. Chase demands would last year have been paid with 4,000 000 bushels of corn, or 390,000 barrels of whiskey. Now it rerequires 8,000,000 bushels of corn, or the whole make of whisky. This enormous taxation, it will be remembered, is only to raise $20 000,000 out of $400,000,000 asked for by the President. That functionary assumed the correctness of Mr. Chase's figures, and said tauntingly, "it is only one twenty-third part of what you possess, and which you say you are ready to give;" but correcting Mr. Chase's figures, it is 10 it cent. of all the property even if the property is worth what it was last year. But the war has al-ready destroyed half its productive value, and the available dollar, even if it could be realized; but by depriving the West of its markets, the land is re duced virtually to its wild condition. We will now call attention to the other gross, error of Mr.Chase. He says the direct tax on these amounts would be as follows: 1. Φ cent. on $16,102 116 whole Union. 1.5 Φ centon $10,000,758 807, North, realand per-demand is virtually for 20 7 cent, or one-fifth of the whole; and as the property will depreciate with the war, three years' demand will consume every 30-100 g cent on $ 570,230,700, North, real alone ..... 92,-91,500 We have made it il ar we trust, that he has grossly erred in the valuations he assumes. His greater error consists in the assumption that the rate could be uniform in each State. He no doubt is led into this error by ignoring the existence of States as prescribed by the Constitution, which in strument insists that taxation shall be according to representation, that is to say, according to the States that are parties to the Constitution. Each State has to pay to the Federal Government for its support a sum of money, not according to its property, but according to its representation in the Federal Congress, whatever may be its property. There are 150 representatives from the Northern States; consequently, in levying a tax of $20 000,000, a State pays for each member $133,300, We may now compare Connecticut with Michigan: Connecticut, Michigan.

Thus the concentrated manufacturing wealth of Connecticut would pay but 20c 20 $100, and the agricultural products of Michigan 66c., or more than three times the rate. The difference grises from the fact that the Constitution makes numbers the basis of taxation, because the parties to it are States, the elements of which are numbers. When Mr. Chase, therefore, publishes that this tax will be a uniform rate of 20 cents P $100, he deceives the public; most of all the agricultural or poorer public, whose rates will be very much higher than those of the richer communities. The agriculturists will find that they will have to bear the burden of the war, while, as the war is one of invasion, the money will be spent buying supplies in the enemy's country. ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.
